Art of Lee Steele

I was born and grew up in and around Whitby, North Yorkshire and have traversed a diverse path from my Fathers car body repair workshop, North Sea oil rigs along with working in the therapy departments of medium & high security psychiatric units.

In addition, he studied 3D design in York and ran his own gallery - studio in Robin Hoods Bay.

He currently works from his own dedicated studio and workshop in East Yorkshire, where as well as running classes, I create original, hand-built retro-industrial pieces, drawing inspiration from the rusting remains of the industrial and shipping economies along the East coast.

His current work is heavily influenced by the processes of erosion and corrosion, both physical and psychological, as well my perspective and reaction to the current global pandemic.

From a formless lump of clay, he started to carve chains. It has become a form of therapy and meditation. Link by link, day by day. The position of each link affecting the position of the next and influencing the whole.
